Cultural heritage and scenery

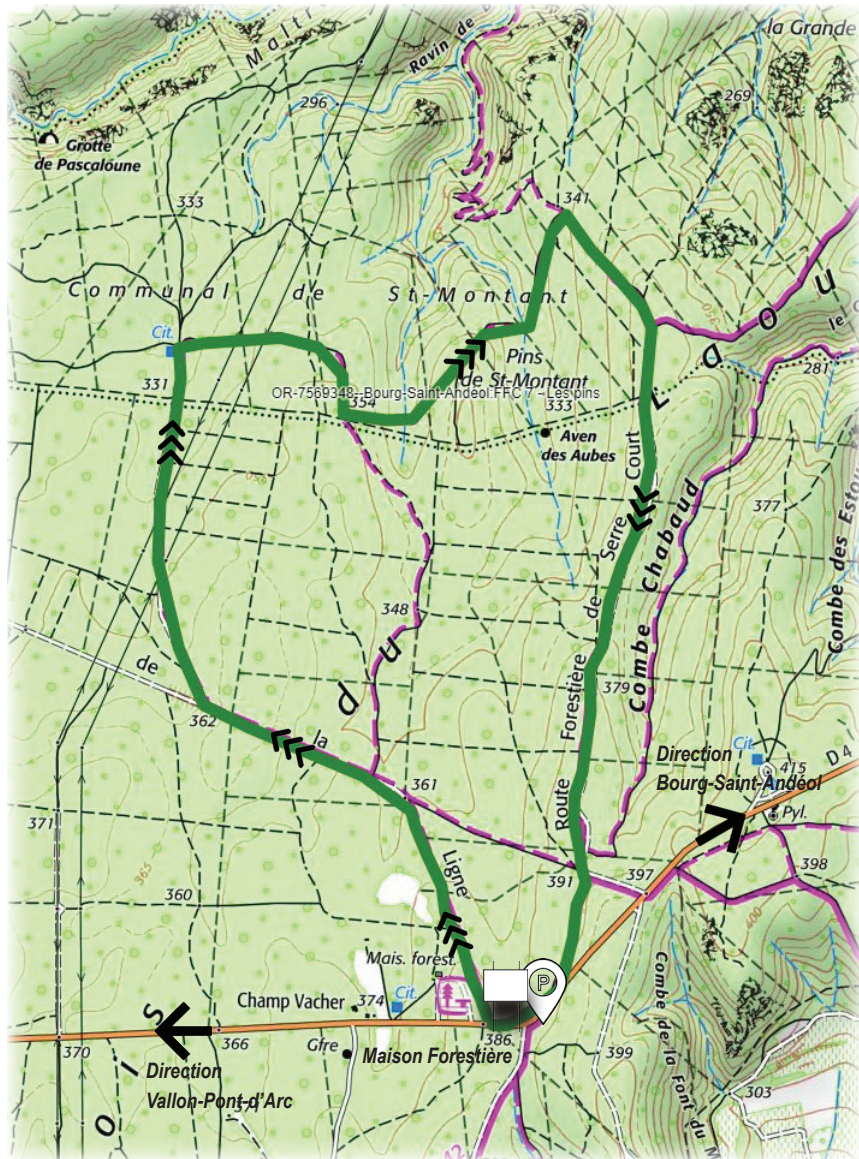

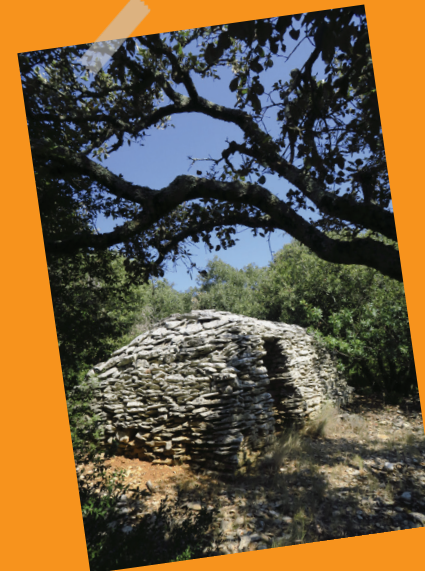

From the dolmens of the Géandes woods to Dona Vierna

Legend has it that the fearsome Géandes owned this land and were the ones to build the numerous megaliths. These prehistoric Neolithic tombs (3000 – 1800BC) have fascinated or even terrified our ancestors throughout the ages.

Just imagine the life of those who lived here

In centuries past, you could have come across some highly colorful characters who have left their mark on Bourg Saint Andéol and its area such as the Roman troops from Alba la Romaine, the sooty-faced charcoal burners, the goatherds and their flocks, the men who quarried the limestone to build the Rhône's quays and the railroads ... a wide range of ancient trades and crafts and their memories.
